Hold-up Figures

Top, three Ellwood City, Pa., youths, charged with armed robbery in the $1,240 daylight holdup of Phillip Schmutzler, Mansfield cafe proprietor last Friday noon. Left to right, they are William Justine, 28; Vincent Carbeau, also 28, and Rocco Cusato, 24. Carbeau, a nephew of Schmutzler by marriage, has admitted he drove the car, police say. The other two staged the actual hold-up, police contend.

Center, Police Chief Meade K. Bates counts the recovered money. He said all but $20 of the entire sum had been recovered.

Lower picture is William M. Jeffries, manager of the Nobil Shoe store, North Main street. Jeffries, a witness to the holdup, wrote down the license number of the Pennsylvania car used in the robbery. It was this clue that led to the arrest of the trio. Jeffries accompanied authorities to Ellwood City yesterday, identified the three men. He's shown here back at work, the excitement over.

SURPRISE AHEAD OF THEM

Police Believe Trio Treats Incident as 'Joke'; Face Penalty of 10 Years.

Three men arrested in Ellwood City, Pa., yesterday in connection with the $1,240 daylight robbery of Phillip Schmutzler last Friday on North Main street, were bound over to the Richland county grand jury this morning when they appeared in municipal court for arraignment.

All three pleaded not guilty, waived reading of the affidavits which charge them with armed robbery, and were bound over under bonds of $10,000 each.

Efforts were being made this morning, courthouse attaches said, to post the bond for Vincent A. Carbeau, 28, who is a nephew of Schmutzler's by marriage. Police said that Carbeau was the "finger man" in the robbery.

The other two were William Justice, 28, and Rocco Cusato, 24. The three were traced through the license number of the car in which they were said to have escaped. Police Chief Meade K. Bates said yesterday that Carbeau had admitted driving the get-away car.

Carbeau alone seemed to take the charge seriously when the three faced Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch this morning.

Bates said that all three seemed to regard the matter as something of a joke yesterday when they were brought in, and were under the impression that at the most, punishment would mean a few months in county jail.

Officers had not told the trio today that the charge against them, if found guilty, means a sentence of ten to 25 years.

Wanted to Go Home.

Carbeau is said to have asked authorities last evening if he couldn't "go home to spend the night and show up when you want me." Bates said their attitude may have been due to the fact that there is a difference between the laws of Ohio and Pennsylvania and a decided difference in the punishment for armed robbery.

Police said that when they were brought to city jail yesterday, one of the trio recognized William M. Jeffries, shoe store manager, who had taken down the license number of an automobile seen near the

'Force With Force' --- FDR

Addressing the 50th anniversary meeting of the board of governors of the Pan-American union in Washington, President Roosevelt declared that nations of the western hemisphere must be prepared to "meet force with force" if necessary. 1,500 QUALIFY TO CAST VOTES AT PRIMARIES

Ineligibles Flock to Election Board on Final Day; 18,000 on Registration List.

TOTAL SECOND HIGHEST

'First Time' Voters Line Up at Courthouse, Swamp Clerks on Extra Duty.

Nearly 18,000 Mansfielders will be eligible to vote in the May 14 primary, election board officials estimated today after hundreds of prospective voters crowded the board's headquarters last night before the registration and transfer deadline.

While the election board had not completed a count of the registrations today, at least 1,500 persons registered or transferred in the past few days, board clerks estimated. More than 16,000 qualified voters were already registered with the board.

The registration list for the May primary is believed to be the second highest on record in the city. An all-time high was established before the special school bond election two years ago when a vigorous campaign boosted the registrations past 19,000.

Lose Interest, Disqualified.

A number of voters lost interest after the bond election, however, and failed to vote at the next two elections, losing their eligibility, board officials said.

An unusually large number of "first time" voters registered yesterday, clerks said. Persons who will be 21 before the election were entitled to register.

Four extra clerks were needed yesterday and last night to handle the flood of city residents who sought to qualify.

The board office was kept open until 9 p. m. to take care of the last-minute registrations and transfers. A line formed early in the evening outside the election board office and scores of persons waited outside until the doors closed to get into the office.

Registrations were slow during the early part of the registration period, but it was believed that increased activity of the 50 candidates for county offices who urged people to register stirred interest in the election before the deadline.

Ships Clash In Skagerrak, Land Fight Goes On

Allies Extend Gains Near Narvik, But Nazis Continue Advance Near Oslo; 10,000 Norwegians Reported to Have Crossed Swedish Border.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—Richard A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, told the house of commons today that British forces had landed on the Faroe Islands, Danish possessions northwest of Scotland. Butler said that the governor of the Faroes had agreed to grant facilities to the British forces in order to prevent the Germans from establishing themselves there.

(By International News Service)

A new naval battle was reported raging in the Skagerrak today while British and French troops extended their gains in the Narvik district. German troops, however, ousted Norwegians from the key city of Kongsvinger in southern Norway.

At the same time, French Premier Paul Reynaud and British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain carried on the battle in parliamentary halls claiming devastating blows to Germany.

Reynaud told the French senate that "massive and irreparable mutilation" of the Nazi fleet had been accomplished in Scandinavian waters. He repeatedly stressed allusions to "Allied" rather than British troops in the Narvik campaign, and said more were on the way.

Chamberlain, speaking before the National Free Church council, said he was more than ever confident that the "mad dog" of Hitlerism would be destroyed.

But while Stockholm confirmed claims that the Allies were in complete possession of Narvik, far-northern iron ore port, it also reported important Nazi gains against the desperately fighting Norwegians north of Oslo.

The Nazis had been driven out of Narvik and were thought to have been trapped between Allied and Norwegian units. But they suddenly turned on the Norwegians, according to Stockholm, and captured the Baerfjeld station on the iron ore railroad.

However, their position was still held to be desperate with ultimate defeat or internment in Sweden virtually inescapable.

In the south of Norway, where the Nazis appeared to have just about wiped out Norwegian resistance, German units had advanced eastward from the coastal city of Trondheim to within three miles of the Swedish frontier.

Kongsvinger had been evacuated by the Norwegians but was not yet occupied by the Nazis, according to latest Stockholm reports. The Swedish capital said at least 10,000 Norwegians had fled across the Swedish frontier in panic. Three thousand were said to be Norwegian soldiers.

Nazis Snap Back At FDR, Tell Him To Mind His Own Business

(By International News Service)

BERLIN — Germany snapped back at President Roosevelt today for his speech before the Pan-American union governing board and counselled him, in effect, to mind his own business.

Authoritative Wilhelmstrasse quarters commented that when the American chief executive complains about aggressive intervention or interference he is —"unwittingly or not"—hitting at the war aims of the allies.

To support this contention German quarters cited the alleged French "war map," publication of which created an international stir several weeks ago. The map, photographed in French Premier Paul Reynaud's office during his conference with American Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles, showed Germany with its boundaries considerably reduced.

(Editor's Note: In his speech yesterday President Roosevelt criticized the practices of dictatorships and warned that the American nations must be prepared to "meet force with force" to preserve peace in the western hemisphere.)

"Furthermore," said a German spokesman, "the allied declarations of their intentions to destroy Hitlerism certainly must be placed in the category of uncalled for interference in our own affairs."

BERLIN—(AP)—Commenting on President Roosevelt's recently expressed disapprobation of the Nazi invasion of Norway, authorized German sources said:

"All we ask is that American history be examined from the viewpoint of necessities at various times for national expansion. We believe that fair-minded Americans will then realize there are striking parallels between American needs in the past and German needs at present.

Accused Of Manslaughter In Traffic Death Near Mansfield

A warrant charging involuntary manslaughter was filed today against Harold F. Rolf, 43, of Cleveland Heights, driver of an automobile which figured in a collision four days ago south of Lexington on route 42 in which Gad Dennis, 67, of Middletown, was injured fatally.

The affidavit was signed by Corp. C. F. Strayer of the state highway patrol. Mr. Dennis died in General hospital here yesterday. Dennis' wife, Anna Dennis, 63, is still in the hospital.

Rolf was first charged with careless and reckless driving and is at liberty on a $50 bond. William F. Black, attorney for Rolf, told County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott today that he would have Rolf back in Mansfield for a hearing within the next few days.

Marriott said state highway officers told him that Rolf was the second car behind a truck, and that when the car ahead of him pulled out to go around the truck he "assumed" that the way was clear. The other driver made it, but Rolf crashed head-in into the Middletown car.

Marriott said members of the Dennis family had told him they did not want to prosecute the case against Rolf, but that the evidence showed a man had been killed as the result of careless driving and that both he and Corp. Strayer believed some action should be taken.

The case will come before the new grand jury which will be called into session next Tuesday.

TRADE CLIMBS

War Boosts U. S. Export Figure by 30 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— America's war-stimulated foreign trade sent export figures climbing again in March to $344,000,000—30 per cent above a year ago.

The March total was about $6,000,000 over February figures, but still about $14,000,000 under the December-January level.

Secretary of Commerce Hopkins today attributed the increase to larger sales of machinery, trucks, iron and steel products, other metals, chemicals and airplanes. Sales of cotton, meat, lard, corn and fruit, however, dropped off slightly.

Geographically, the principal gains were made in Canada, France, Japan, Russia, Argentina, Finland and the Philippine Islands. England, which has been expanding purchases here rapidly, bought slightly less last month.

DEWEY TALKS AT UNIVERSITY

Urges Administration Favorable To Private Enterprise.

INDIANAPOLIS — (INS) — Having laid down a program to inject new life into business, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey today conferred with farm, labor and business leaders before continuing his transcontinental tour.

He told an audience at Butler university last night that, in his opinion, the country cannot move forward until an administration favorable to private enterprise is installed at the White House. When this is done, he said, employment will be found for 10-12 million Americans now out of work.

Dewey's next speech will be at Oklahoma City tomorrow.

Puzzle: Can Mayor, Councilman Sell Insurance To Schools?

Whether Mayor William J. Locke and Councilman George C. Kyle can sell insurance to the Mansfield schools puzzled the board of education today and delayed the final letting of contracts for $2,193,300 in insurance covering city school buildings and equipment.

The board discussed the situation for nearly two hours last night after the Mansfield Underwriters committee submitted a schedule giving Kyle a $12,480 increase in school insurance, but depriving Locke of any school insurance business because of his city office.

Both the mayor and Councilman Kyle are city officials and should be treated alike in the awarding of school insurance, the board decided.

The problem arose when the board prepared to purchase new insurance amounting to $759,000 on the new Johnny Appleseed and John Simpson junior high school buildings. The board attempted to distribute the increase among all 36 agencies which issued insurance policies.

Pending a ruling from the state insurance department on the question, the board let provisional contracts last night to 26 agencies

RAISE DUTIES

U. S. Officials Counteracting Fall in British Pound.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The treasury department today ordered increases in customs duties on imports from Great Britain because of depreciation of the British pound.

The action was taken in instructions to customs collectors to utilize the official rate of the pound as the basis for determining tariff imposts, rather than the free market rate. The order is also applicable to the Canadian dollar, the Newfoundland dollar, and the Australian pound.

Two market prices for these currencies have been prevailing. The official exchange rate of the pound has been in the neighborhood of $4, while the free market rate has been hovering around the $3.50 mark.

By utilizing the official rate in customs computations, the treasury, in effect, is boosting the amount of duty on British imports.

SUN SMILES ON OPENING GAMES

Threatening Showers Hold Off for Opening Day Programs.

With threatened showers in several cities holding off hour after hour and the sun shining brightly in three points, prospects for a full program of eight opening day contests looked good today.

Cleveland appears to be ready to start the pennant race at Chicago today against the White Sox. The three points reporting a welcome sun are Chicago, Detroit and St. Louis. Officials predicted a crowd of 50,000 at Detroit.

At Cincinnati, where the Reds play Chicago, the temperature had risen to 65 degrees and the sky was cloudy. Clouds were also hanging over Philadelphia, Washington and New York, but in no case was there an immediate threat of rain.

BORDER: Nazi Troops Fire On Swedish Police, Then Apologize

BULLETIN

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—Rushing on an extra train through a district still held by Norwegians, German troops were reported today to have reached the Storlien Heights three miles from the Swedish border and about 50 miles east of the Norwegian port of Trondheim.

(The report, if true, indicates that Germany almost has succeeded in cutting Norway in half at her narrow waist.)

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden—German troops fired at Swedish policemen on the Norwegian-Swedish frontier, a Stockholm newspaper reported today.

German detachments, advancing along a railroad bridge, reached the Swedish frontier at 2 p. m. yesterday, the newspaper the Dagens Nyheter said, and were halted by Swedish border police.

The Germans fired machine guns at the policemen, the newspaper said, but hit none of them.

Swedish soldiers went to the aid of the policemen and, it was said, shouted at the Germans: "Are you at war with Sweden?"

The Germans ceased fire and apologized, the newspaper said.

German troops, driving toward the Swedish frontier all through the southeastern Norwegian area, were reported today to have forced the Norwegians from the key town of Kongsvinger, 45 miles northeast of Oslo and only 15 miles from the frontier.

The Swedish officials news agency asserted that the Norwegians

EAST: Allied Armies Ready To Meet Italy, Writer Finds

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
(UP Staff Correspondent)

ROME—The Allied armies in the east are geared to meet the possibility of Italy entering the war on the side of Germany.

A three-month inspection tour which enabled me to see at first hand the Anglo-French fighting machine as set up in Syria, Egypt, Palestine, Iraq, Iran, and India convinced me that this preparedness is not aimed at Russia, as is popularly supposed.

On the contrary it is a precautionary move to hold the Suez canal, Egypt, and the Sudan against any invasion through Italian Libya or even Ethiopia.

The army in the middle east seemed smaller than is generally believed. The talk of a million Allied men seemed greatly exaggerated, with a total of 300,000 being nearer the truth.

I found Gen. Maxime Weygand's army of the east in Syria; and English, Scotch, and Australians encamped in Palestine. They have mobile forces so organized as to

Crew Saved as Bomber Makes Forced Landing In Ocean

ARMY CRAFT RUNS OUT OF GAS ON FLIGHT

Pilot Picks Sea Landing Spot 'Because It's Softer'; 8 Cling to Cabin.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — Exhausting its gasoline supply while circling about in search of a landing place, a large army bomber with eight men aboard landed safely in the Atlantic ocean off Coney Island early today.

None of the occupants was injured. Two men made their way to shore on a rubber raft to seek help. The others were rescued by the coast guard and the plane was towed ashore by a police launch.

The bomber was returning from a routine training flight to Maxwell field, Montgomery, Ala. Approaching New York City en route to its base at Mitchell field it ran into heavy weather, according to Lieut. Edmund Gorman, the pilot. Lieut. Gorman said he lost his way and when the gasoline gave out he decided to bring the plane down on the water because "it is softer and the fire hazard is less."

It was believed the plane escaped undamaged but an examination of the undercarriage will be made later.

On board in addition to Lieut. Gorman were: Lieut. Joseph Thompson, co-pilot; Lieut. W. C. Ahearns, radio operator; Sgt. T. Cocker, flight engineer; Lieut. C. C. Snyder and Maj. R. W. Gibson, navigators, and R. B. Harrison and A. Palchanik, ordinance men.

Lieut. Gorman gave this version: "A little after 3 a. m. we were flying over New York trying to determine our exact whereabouts. We were running out of gas rapidly. I didn't know where we were so I decided to set the ship down on the water. It is softer and the fire hazard is less."

Several flares dropped from the circling plane attracted the attention of police and rescuers. The six remaining men were atop the cabin when rescued.

CRASH KILLS TWO

MIDDLETOWN, Conn.—(INS)—Harry E. Noyes, 43, millionaire Marblehead, Mass., automobile dealer, and a business associate were killed and two other men were painfully injured and burned early today when the chartered plane taking them to Palm Beach, Fla., crashed in Cockapennsett State forest near here.

Killed with Noyes was Robert Rideout, also of Marblehead.

The injured were James R. Hartwell, of Brookline, Mass., the pilot, and Charles Smith, 40, the caretaker of Noyes' estate at Marblehead.

Canadian Boats Tied Up By Ice, Seamen's Strike

TORONTO—(AP)—Most of Canada's 285 lake boats remained tied to their docks as ice and a strike called by the Canadian Seamen's union combined to delay today's scheduled opening of the Great Lakes navigation season.

Union officials, asserting that 4,500 to 5,000 sailors had walked out in a dozen ports, said the strike was 100 per cent effective and predicted it might be extended to the licensed personnel of the boats.

J. A. Sullivan, president of the union, said the strike would continue for month if necessary to obtain a new agreement covering wages and working conditions.

Company officials said they would not accept the union's demand for a closed shop and asserted there was no point in negotiating as long as the union would not yield on this point.

The union's original demands included a $15 month wage increase and three extra men on each boat.

Federal authorities, meanwhile, awaited a ruling from the department of justice on the legality of the strike under the industrial disputes investigation act. Longshoremen intimated that they might strike in sympathy with the seamen.

Happily unaware of the irony of his position, the caretaker of the First Lutheran church yesterday afternoon sprinkled lawn fertilizer with a carefree hand across the sod in front of the church. He was carrying the fertilizer in a wooden box that had once packed a commercial cleanser. And onto the soil he was casting a preparation from a box which carried in bold letters—"Hurts Only Dirt."

Everything except the San Francisco earthquake has been blamed on "typographical errors," but this time it really was just that. In Sunday's paper was a "personality" of Charles H. Hughes, president of the Richland Trust and Savings company, which said that he had been with the bank for 24 years. The story read for "42 years" but the man behind the linotype made a transposition in the figures and that's how it went into the paper. Not that "Charlie" minds for he looks young enough to get by with the 24-year service. The correction is merely to keep the records straight when he celebrates his Golden Jubilee at the bank eight years from now.

NAVY CONSIDERS CARIBBEAN BASE FOR NEW PANAMA CANAL DEFENSE

WASHINGTON—(AP)—While a more formidable fleet was being urged on congress because of the European war, the navy evinced interest today in acquiring a base in the southeast Caribbean to plug a potential chink in Panama Canal defenses.

It discussed this subject in a statement answering a series of questions from Chairman Walsh (D., Mass.) of the senate naval committee.

"A fleet airbase in the southeast corner of the Caribbean," the navy department said, "would undoubtedly add to the security of the area as well as to the ability of the United States fleet to insure the integrity of the Monroe doctrine.

"A base for the United States fleet located in this vicinity would afford a strategically centralized position which should permit our fleet to operate in any direction."

Existing naval installations in Florida, Cuba and Puerto Rico control most of the Atlantic approaches to the Canal, but the United States has no bases to guard to the flank adjacent to the topmost part of South America.

The islands in those waters are British and French possessions. Their acquisitions in lieu of war debt payments has been suggested frequently in congress.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, testifying yesterday at senate hearings on the $655,000,000 fleet expansion bill, advocated a 25 per cent increase in the navy construction program, and cautioned against any delay in current building.

The present fleet, he said, "is too small—much too small" to deal with any combination of hostile nations that could command the combined naval might of Britain and France.

One surprise in his testimony was the statement that three of the fleet's dreadnaughts would be valueless in a naval engagement because their main batteries had not been modernized. The insufficient elevation of their guns, he said, would put them at the mercy of lighter cruisers.

The Allies, meanwhile, cleared away the final obstacle to large scale buying of American warplanes. Their purchasing mission agreed "without reservation" to all United States requirements

State Chairman Charges Burton Misrepresented Relief Crisis in Cleveland.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — A sharp exchange of words between State Chairman Ed D. Schorr of Cincinnati and Mayor Harold M. Burton of Cleveland, a candidate for senatorial nomination, enlivened the Republican primary campaign in Ohio today.

Facing "personal" opposition of the state chairman, Mayor Burton said he wanted to be "the people's senator, not Ed Schorr's."

The split between the two prominent Republicans flared into the open last night at a dinner for candidates here at which Schorr charged Mayor Burton with "wilful and purposeful misrepresentation" of the Cleveland relief situation.

The chairman introduced Congressman Dudley White of Norwalk to the Hamilton county Republican executive committee as the organization's choice for U. S. senator "in my person opinion," asserting:

"I told Mayor Burton that he was not considered a good organization Republican and he told me he was an independent Republican. A more serious objection to his candidacy was his conduct . . . in making the country believe there was a serious relief crisis in Cleveland and that the state was not responsive. . . .

"That misrepresentation — wilful and purposeful—has done a gross and unjust injury to Gov Bricker and the Republican party."

Replied Mayor Burton:

"My record of good faith with the public is clear. To deny that there was a tragic, heart breaking relief crisis in Cleveland in 1939 when 60,000 Ohio people were suffering in destitution, or to suggest that I exaggerated their needs reveals complete ignorance of the facts . . . ."

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Capitol political interest shifted today to a meeting of the Republican arrangements committee at Philadelphia, with well-informed sources predicting that Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota would be designated keynote speaker for the party's national convention.

Besides Stassen, only Glenn Frank, chairman of the Republican program committee, and Alf M. Landon, the party's 1936 presidential nominee, have been mentioned prominently for the speechmaking post. Some of Landon's friends expressed the opinion that he would not want the job.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Notes of a Broadway Archaeologist.

Mary Anita Loos, niece of the author of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," is regarded as one of the ten top glamor girls in New York. A few years ago, she excavated with the School of American Research. When she came to study the Broadway scene some time later, she found certain resemblances between what she once dug up and what she observed of current cafe society. This is how she thinks an archaeologist of 2940 A. D. would put it:

By MARRY ANITA LOOS

In The Pueblo Manhattan in the third strata, second mound, we have run across a twentieth century room, perfect of its type, belonging in the newly discovered category "night club." This type of edifice, a compact rectangular room, beautifully fitted but with seats well-preserved archaic musical instruments, including a large one known from previous papyrus as the "piano".

Situated on the corner of the Madison and Fifty-fourth intersection, it would seem to have been a gathering place of a cult known as "cafe society".

The smooth floor shows the scrapings of innumerable feet. Hundreds of years ago homosapiens gathered here in large numbers wearing precious jewels about their necks and costly stuffs shaped into fantastic garments.

Although their knees were all pushed together under the tables, the women were swathed in yards of materials, and through drafts called air conditioning played about them, their shoulders were usually bare. The men wore conventional black and white costumes of severe lines. Gathering in multitudes this race was most happy when in large numbers in a small room.

If they entered a room where a few people were present and there was plenty of space, they left immediately.

They paid small coins to inhale smoke into their lungs, which was a social affectation, not a medicine. They paid large coins and flat printed certificates to drink intoxicating beverages. As far as can be ascertained this did not result in a religious stimulation.

Then, pairing, they danced together in a small space, keeping rhythm to certain popular drum beats, accompanied by flute and string.

This was not a religious ceremony either, but as far as can be determined there is no evidence that it was strictly a mating custom.

The migratory instincts of the Manhattanites caused an unrest which led them from place to place during the course of the evening, usually in a vehicle, machine driven and called a "taxi". This machine often traveled at such speed around corners that it crashed into other such vehicles. At which time the night club cult would join the driver in a quarrel against the opposing factor.

In a small office upstairs in our newest excavation we discovered some notes which are interesting because of their archaeological reference. They refer to Greek Mythology, showing that these denizens had a shallow smattering of ancient lore previous to their era. These notes are reprinted from the archives of the National Museum.

No one has the glamour of Juno, queen of the gods, more than Mrs. Harrison Williams. Peggy Hopkins Joyce, who would be our selection for Circe, the enchantress, has one quality in common with Mrs. Williams: both of them can make a man feel as if no woman ever really listened to him before. To jump for a moment to Egypt, the proto-type of Nefertiti, the lovely wife of Akhnaton whose bust is in the Berlin Museum, is Millicent Balcolm. If anyone should be Bebe, glamor girl drink pourer to the gods, it is that warbler Marcy Wescott. Diana, the huntress, quick on the draw, would be Rosalind Russell.

For Minerva, goddess of Wisdom, who else would fill the bill but Clare Booth Luce, so sharp that no one dares to make a wise crack in front of her for fear they will see themselves as a character in one of her plays three months later?

For Venus who could be better than Bea Ammidown, although in her case you might have to call her "pocket-Venus". If the Three Graces were going to jive on any model Olympus, odds would be that Betty Grable, Renee de Marco and Jane Pickens wouldn't be bad at all.

And as for Nemesis, the avenging goddess, Katherine Hepburn could fly on my rosy cloud. If anyone could play the part of the minx Pandora who let all of the trouble and hope into the world it would be Diana Blythe Barrymore, who is unpredictable. And there would be more than one elector who would suggest that Cleopatra, as she appeared unrolled in a rug as Caesar first met her, should be Brenda Frazier.

Mayor LaGuardia might be a good Jupiter for our Olympus while Paul Draper certainly only needs a few leaves to be the god Pan.

Orpheus with his wreath worn at a tilt would be Cole Porter with his lyrics written in iambic pentameter. Neptune would inevitably be Billy Rose and if Al Capone were in the town again he could double for Pluto, god of the underworld.

Serge Oblensky, who is pretty neat on his feet, would be Mercury. The next winner of night club fisticuffs can be a natural for Mars, and Bacchus, jovial night lifer, is reincarnated in ever-young Tommy Manville. And Plutus, the god of Wealth, whose fingers drip tips would be that mystery man Fritz Mandl.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—So you want a divorce?

Not Dick Powell and Joan Blondell. Deliver them. They're playing in "I Want a Divorce" as a stepping-stone to something they want. "I Want a Divorce" is just a title.

Not that they weren't afraid of it. Joan is from the stage, where superstitions come by the truckful. Didn't they hear what happened to Bette Davis, that time she was signing a contract?

At that time, studios were very solicitous about the "divorce clause" in contracts. Players had to sign away their right, for a specified time, to take their marital troubles to a judge. Bette Davis looked at her divorce clause, read it, announced she was signing under protest. Because Bette just had married Harmon O. Nelson, Jr., and nothing like that ever, ever would happen to Bette and "Ham." Well it happened and it made Joan and Dick feel sort of funny when they looked at a script called "I Want a Divorce."

BUT they took it anyway. In the picture, Dick and Joan get married but they aren't the ones who want the divorce. It's Joan's sister in the picture, Gloria Dickson, who wants one. In real life, too, I understand, she wants a divorce from Pete Westmore. In the picture, she wants a divorce from Sidney Blackmer, who in real life already has one from Lenore Ulric.

In fact, when you look over the cast, there are mighty few in it who haven't had a divorce. Conrad Nagel has; so has Frank Fay. And Joan and Dick have, too—the divorces they got before they married each other.

But they don't want any more; this "I Want a Divorce," as they see it, is a chance to show the folks what a nice, congenial Mr. and Mrs. team they can make—for future pictures as in life.

There hasn't been a real Mr. and Mrs. comedy team on the screen since Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, which was away back in the silents.

THERE are some mighty potent Mr. and Mrs. teams around, but all working in different movies. Mr and Mrs. Gable, for instance, who haven't worked together since "No Man of Her Own." Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, who haven't been teamed since they became Mr. and Mrs. Mr. and Mrs. Power — Annabella didn't even win Ty the last movie they made together.

What the producers want is not Mr. and Mrs., but young love. Like Dorothy Lamour and Bob Preston, if that is what is the matter with them. Like Crawford and

WINTER KILLS MORROW BEES, CHECK LOSSES

Apiarists to Restock Hives; 44 of 48 on One Farm Destroyed by Weather.

MT. GILEAD--A known loss of up to 2,500,000 of Morrow county's hardest farm workers contributed today to general concern over winter-killed bees in connection with crop and plant growth.

Don Cotner of Mt. Gilead, operator of the largest apiary in the county, reported the loss of 44 of 48 hives in one yard alone. Each hive normally contains from 60,000 to 100,000 bees.

Cotner now is checking the balance of his 100 hives with the realization that a $1,500 loss is possibe if he fails to restock and continue in business.

Restocking is possible with the purchase of package bees, accompanied by a queen in separate inclosure, in two and three pound lots, Cotner said.

Located near the center of the county, Cotner's bees when working are important pollination agents for an area roughly six miles in diameter on the basis of a honeybee's known average limit of three miles of travel to collect nectar for honey-making.

Pollen collected and cross-deposited by the bee in its search for nectar is said to be an invaluable agent in the reproduction of plant life.

Planning to restock at least some of his hives, Cotner noted the need to introduce the queen bee in each colony cautiously for fear the workers would kill her.

A special queen trap keeps the queen segregated from the rest of the colony in the individual hive until the workers have eaten through a hole filled with candy to release the queen after they have become accustomed to her body odor, he said.

Bromfield Lists 4 Ways To Solve Economic Ills

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

America must get back to common sense, thrift, hard work, and a new sense of values to solve its economic and unemployment problems, Louis Bromfield, Mansfield author, told the Rotary club at its luncheon meeting today at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

"I don't think that a New Deal or any other 'deal' or panacea will have much to do with solving our big problems. They are too fundamental to be handled that easily, and no party or president can find the answer in three or four years," Bromfield said.

"The trouble with our fantastic panacea; is that they give only temporary relief and solve nothing. We are guilty of thinking we can try something new or maybe do nothing and wake up tomorrow morning and find our troubles all over.

"The day of making immense fortunes and opening up new fields of natural wealth in America is about over and we must realize that. In America, for the first time, we are faced with the problems Europe has known for 500 years.

"Most of the complaints we hear come about from the pinch of living, and most of them are the result of our own foolishness," he continued.

Sets Up Example.

"We can learn a lesson from the European immigrant. Trained in the ways of thrift and hard work, he is prepared to meet unemployment and depression when it comes by raising his own food. The American workmen with nothing ahead and debts on most of the things he owns, can't keep up the pace and goes on relief."

The false economy of installment buying has contributed to the nation's economic plight, the author said. High pressure salesmanship and buying things we don't need and want often lead to disaster when depression strikes, he added.

"We must put less value on fortunes, find new pleasures, and learn new independence," he asserted.

"A great deal of the farmer's trouble is his own fault," Bromfield said. "He plants wheat and corn right up to his door while his wife goes to town to buy her eggs, meat and canned goods. He's been deceived into thinking it is good economy to buy food in cans instead of producing it himself. A part of his trouble may be due to shiftlessness, bad management, and perhaps government tampering, but the answer rests with the individual himself.

"President Roosevelt is not so much a great leader of the age as he is a product of the times, molded by the necessities of our modern economic and social picture," he concluded.

Bromfield was introduced by Harry S. Black, program chairman

COUNCIL MEETS

Shelby Takes No Action on Township Fire Contract.

SHELBY--No action was taken by city council on a fire protection contract from Jackson township trustees presented by Mayor W. R. Morris during the regular semi-monthly council session Monday night at city hall.

The contract as drawn up by the township trustees would give the township fire protection by the Shelby fire department at a cost of $400 for the first four fires during a year period. Every call over the first four would cost the township $50.

Fire protection for the township stopped two years ago when the trustees failed to increase rates in its contract with the city. An increase has been asked by the city for renewal of that old contract then so that adequate equipment could be maintained here to fight rural fires, city officials said. Under the old contract the township paid only $225 for a year's protection.

CHAPTER XVII

Eric! Why he would be arriving any minute! If he planned to move into his room before he left for work, he would be arriving almost before she could dress. The realization of this caused her to spring from the shower and dash into the room, drying herself as she ran As she slipped into her dress the pleasant aroma of coffee seeped through the bedroom and she realized with a smile that Jane had arisen early to prepare for just this possibility. But when Elaine finally finished her dressing and walked out into the kitchen she learned that Jane had not been preparing against this possibility, but rather, for the reality. For Eric was sitting at the kitchen table, smiling happily as Jane bustled about the kitchen, amiable wise-cracks dripping from her lips.

Elaine paused astonished before the door, unable to guess which gave her the greatest snurprise, Eric's early arrival, or the pleasant manner in which Jane was talking with him. She moved slowly into the room pleased that Jane had decided to forget her dislike for Eric. As she advanced into the room Jane became silent and as Eric rose slowly from his chair, the grin faded from his lips, Elaine became aware of a sudden tension

But it was of short duration. Jane gigled suddenly and waved her to a chair. "I was just telling Eric that I am not only an artist, but a poet, too."

"He's crazy if he believes you." Elaine teased, glad that the tension had vanished She glanced at Eric who had once more taken his chair "What are you doing here at this hour?"

His face grew grave and for a moment he looked as though he were going to attempt explaining his behavior of the evening before but apparently deciding against this, he smiled and pointed at his watch. "I'm a slave now, Elaine. I have to be at work by nine."

For the first time Elaine noticed his bags, which stood near the kitchen closet, and realizing that he would not have time to unpack before he left for work, offered to do so for him. "I'll get the key to your room from Momma Gambino," she said, smiling. "And when you get home tonight we'll have you all unpacked."

"She'll have you unpacked." Jane corrected crisply. "Me, I have to go over to several greeting-card companies today" With that she placed a platter of fried eggs and bacon on the table and sat down

The next half hour passed off pleasantly. Elaine ate heartily She was hungrier than she had thought she was, and not only was she enjoying the food, but the comforting nearness of Eric across the table from her, his smiling face and tender eyes repaying her for her confidence in him. His almost-school-boyish air tugged at her heartstrings, made her glad she could forgive his faults

"Well, I have to be going," Jane remarked, a mischievous twinkle in her eye. "And so do you, Eric. Want to walk me down to the subway?"

"Sure," he said with alacrity, springing from the chair. He smiled at Elaine, tossing her a ring of keys. "You can use them if you feel ambitious," he told her laughingly. "If not, I'll unpack when I come home."

It was some minutes after they had gone before Elaine became fully aware of Jane's thoughtfulness in arising so early. Jane, with her remarkable insight, had known that her first meeting with Eric after his unseemly conduct would prove embarrassing to them both, and with that generosity which she tried to conceal beneath an air of cynicism had decided to help both over the rough spots.

Elaine stood up and tied an apron about her, staring grimly at the dishes on the table. Being that type of girl who abhors disorderliness, she moved slowly to the sink, hating the idea of having to wash them but loathing the thought of leaving them standing about. She moved briskly about the room, gathering all the cooking utensils and dishes and silver together and carrying them over to the sink.

So engrossed had she become in her work that she failed to see the kitchen door slowly open, or to see the tender light which appeared in Melvyn Stuart's eyes as he watched her work. Had she been told that she looked lovely in her apron she would have laughed, but in reality she was one of those women who take on the appurtenances of domesticity without losing one jot of glamour. She worked intently at the sink, unaware of his presence until he knocked up against the table. With a nervous start she whirled around, almost dropping the saucepan she was drying in her surprise.

"It was worth the trip to see you like that," Melvyn said with a smile. "You're lovlier than ever, Elaine."

"I'm a very busy woman, too," she told him, turning back to the sink, more confused by his admiring eyes than she cared for him to see. "I—I didn't expect you so early."

"Don't tell me that Sis forgot to let you know I was coming in this morning," he said with a laugh He drew a chair out and calmly sat down, enjoying her discomfiture. "I'm glad I did surprise you, though. You look lovelier without make-up."

Elaine turned around and eyed him coolly "If you're going to say such things I'll have to ask you to leave." She knew she was sounding schoolgirlish, that her words were silly, but somehow she had to manage to convey to him the fact that their kiss at the hospital had simply been a kindly gesture on her part, that she didn't love him and that she wasn't interested in receiving compliments from him.

He refused to be chastened by her words. "I think I want to talk about how lovely you are, Elaine. And you should let me. After all, when a man has loved you as long as I have he should be entitled to say something about it, or do something about it, for that matter"

Elaine watched him rise from the chair and walk slowly towards her. Instinctively she knew that he was going to try to kiss her again and she stood rigid by the sink, her eyes growing round with surprise as she noticed that he appeared even handsomer in everyday clothes than he had in his white interne uniform. As he halted just before her she became aware of a sudden throbbing of her heart Confused, she drew away from him, raised her eyes to look straight into his.

"You have absolutely no right to say anything about love to me, Melvyn," she told him, slipping easily into the use of his first name. "I'm engaged to be married, and besides, I don't love you"

He laughed shortly. "That's what you think, Elaine." Before she could move out of his reach his arms closed about her, drawing her tightly to him. "You love me and I love you, that's all there is to the matter." His eyes were fiery as his hands imprisoned her face, turning her lips up to his.

"Melvyn! You mustn't!"

As she uttered her protesting words she managed to draw herself free from his arms but before she could take advantage of this opportunity to move away he cornered her against the sink. In the next instant he had flung his arms about her and was crushing her to him. She tried to cry out, tried to command him to stop this mad action, but before she could summon the power to speak his lips were upon hers, crushing the words from her throat. And through her, as he held her close, coursed a wildfire that left her limp and breathless in his embrace.

"I love you, Elaine. Can't you understand that? Can't you understand that when a man loves as madly as I do nothing else in the world matters? I love you, I want you, I'm not going to let an idiotic tool walk away with you just because you happen to have deluded yourself into thinking you love him."

A thousand emotions surged through her, warring with one another, and Elaine raised her head to look at him, agony and self-reproach in her eyes.

"I told you I am engaged to marry Eric," she repeated, furious with herself for surrendering so completely to him. "And I am going to marry him, Melvyn Stuart. If you have nothing else to say you'd better leave. Your room is just across the hall."

Melvyn Stuart shook his head sadly and when he spoke his voice was husky and trembling "Elaine, don't you see that you are in love with me? A girl as fine and decent as you doesn't put so much ardor into a kiss unless she really means it."

"Ardor! The way he enunciated the word made her feel cheap, unclean. How could she have even been so unfaithful to Eric? He had trusted her, wanted to marry her, and surrendered everything dear to himself just so that he could have her as his own. And she—she had proved herself unworthy of his love. Kisses were all right when one is single, foot-loose and fancy-free. But when one is engaged to be married, when one loves a man so wholeheartedly as she loved Eric, there was no excuse for such behavior She scowled as he raised his arms to again take her into his embrace. With an angry, unthinking cry of rage her hand flashed out and she slapped his face with every ounce of strength in her slim body.

Melvyn staggered back against the table, his eyes flaring with anger, but before he could move Elaine walked over to the door and flung it dramatically open "You can get out at once, Melvyn Stuart. And I don't want you to come back into this apartment until you apologize!"

He chuckled at Elaine's pose, a pose which would have been a credit to a great actress But as his eyes met her angry stare he shook his head almost as though he couldn't believe his senses. "Elaine, I really think you believe you do love Eric. It's amazing."

"Not only amazing—but interesting," a new voice ejaculated from the door.

There was a familiar ring to the voice and Elaine whirled around to find Helen Wortorski standing in the center of the living-room, her eyes contemptuous, her lips parted into a knowing smile.

"The apartment door was open," Helen explained, sauntering into the kitchen "Apparently your—er—lover here was so anxious to see you that he forgot to be discreet I knocked, then hearing voices, I came in."

Elaine sagged wearily against the kitchen door too confused to think or speak coherently. She watched Melvyn with dull eyes as he nonchalantly pulled out a chair and sat down, a moment ago this action would have infuriated her but now she was too confused to even bother about that. She glanced soldly at Helen. "Well, what brought you over here?"

Helen shrugged her shoulders. "You know why I'm here. But now I don't think I'll have to ask you to accept the check" Her eyes were menacing slits of green "I'm telling you to accept the check while you still have the chance."

"And if I don't?" Elaine felt she already knew the answer, but some perverse quirk in her character made her want to hear Helen's alternative.

Helen again shrugged her shoulders "Eric may love you, but I don't think that even his love would be great enough to forgive you this."

"This?" Melvyn's face was forbidding as he rose from the chair and strode over to the girl. "And just what do you mean by 'this'?"

"Must I answer that?" Helen asked scornfully. She moved briskly toward the door. "You can reach me at this address if you decide to be sensible, Elaine." She placed a hotel card on the table. "Otherwise . . ." Her shrug was a masterpiece of eloquence as she turned and walked out the door.

Melvyn grasped Elaine's arm and led her to a chair. "Now, then, what's all this about? Who is she? What is this talk about a check?"

Once more he was the same kindly, helpful interne she had known at the hospital and before she knew it Elaine was telling him all about the whole affair, telling him how much she loved Eric, how Helen had determined to marry him herself, about Mrs. Reardon's ridiculous objections to the match. When she finished the explanation she glanced eagerly up at him, her eyes appealing.

"But you can tell Eric that nothing really happened," she told him, feeling happier now that she had got the whole story off her mind. "He won't like the idea of the kiss, I know, but if we tell him it was just one of those silly things I'm sure that . . ."

His grim laugh cut across the plans Elaine was making and when she looked up it was to see his face drawn hard and tight, his eyes flaming, his lips scowling, his chin stubborn.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Teams Ready To Go

May Be Cold and Cloudy, But It Fails to Daunt Spirits.

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK — Menacing clouds cast the getaway of baseball's 16 major league clubs into gloom and uncertainty today, but all were chafing for the chance to spring into action.

The weather, fair and cold throughout the east and midwest over the week-end, turned traitorous on the eve of the opening and not a single game was safe from the threat of the elements as the flag-raising time approached.

In each case the games were listed as the first of a three-game series and any interference in the lid-lifting today would merely postpone the ceremonies until tomorrow with the cast and scenery unchanged. If all eight games escaped trouble today, upwards of 150,000 fans were expected to be present to give their favorites a proper send off.

Naturally the debut of last year's champions was the chief spectacle in each league.

The four times American league and world champion New York Yankees went to Philadelphia without Joe DiMaggio and handicapped by other injuries. It was the fourth time in five years the great outfielder had been absent from an opening. He has a twisted knee.

Red Ruffing was hit by a batted ball in practice yesterday making his start also doubtful, Joe Gordon has been out of the lineup for two weeks with a charley horse and reserve Outfielder Jake Powell is convalescing from a brain concussion.

Hits Brilliant 695 To Set New Record

Henry Michaels Chalks Up Nifty Mark of Games of 206, 254 and 235 In Club League.

HENRY MICHAELS held the spotlight at the Meder Recreation alleys last night.

Bowling with the Liederkranz club in a Club league match, Michaels cracked out a brilliant 695 to establish a new three-game record in the circuit.

Starting out with a 206, Michaels busted the maples for a spectacular 254 and finished with a 235 in compiling his high total. He paced the Liederkranz to three wins over the Richman Clothes. The Liederkranz outfit pounded out a 2864 for team honors.

A nifty 661, topped by a 234 opening game, gave Joe Harrod a new three-game mark in the Commercial C league last night. Harrod led the Levering Dairy team to a clean sweep over the New Method Laundry club. E. Metcalf was the only other kegler breaking 600, as he came in with a 615.

Cleveland Sells Broaca To International Club.

CLEVELAND — (UP) — The Cleveland Indians today had sold Pitcher Johnny Broaca to the Jersey City club of the International league. Broaca was purchased from the New York Yankees in the winter of 1938 after a season of staying out of baseball. He won four and lost two games last season but did not round into effective form this spring.

Fights Here

Paul Carbetta, Friendly House youngster, makes his second start as a bantamweight in Battery D's "battle of champions" benefit amateur mitt show at the Armory Wednesday night. The youthful Mansfielder holds several flyweight titles and advanced to the semi-finals of the Cleveland Golden Gloves tournament recently. He faces Eddie Potter, Columbus city champion, in one of the five-round semi-final matches.

Rolls Perfect Game In Meet

Factory Clerk Is Seventh Person to Hit 300.

DETROIT —(AP)— While champions and near-champions have fallen by the wayside, a bespectacled factory clerk has become the hero of the American Bowling congress.

Rolling in the late afternoon with only a few fans and fellow keglers looking on, 40-year-old George Pallage of Akron, O., yesterday became the seventh person in the history of the A. B. C. to roll a perfect 300 game.

* * *

Just another "unknown" rolling in the singles event, Pallage became the center of attraction when the word got around he had nine strikes in a row after mediocre opening games of 187 and 158. Methodically he proceeded to add three more strikes and the coliseum echoed with cheers.

Another Akron bowler, Encil Carpenter, 42-year-old barber, turned in a 1931 total for fifth place in the all events.

President To Toss First Ball Today

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — "One Pitch" Franklin D. Roosevelt, his future diamond career still in doubt, opens his eighth and perhaps last baseball season at Griffith stadium today.

More than 30,000 government officials, congressmen, politicians, ball players and fans will be on hand to see if he has lost his "stuff."

* * *

Flanked by his military and naval aides, Mr. Roosevelt will toss out the first ball to start the game between the Senators and the Boston Red Sox.

Yarosz Decisions Cleveland Fighter

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Professional boxing turned the financial corner in Cleveland today.

Promoter Bob Brickman, who greeted crowds of about 2,000 when his "revival" began last fall, reported 8,323 passed the turnstiles last night to watch Teddy Yarosz decision Jimmy Reeves in the headliner of a six-bout card.

Yarosz, 170-pound Pittsburgher and former world's middleweight champion, snapped the dusky Clevelander's winning streak at 13 by superior boxing ability and an unusually clever left hand.

PYTLAK PLANS TO RELAX IF HE DOESN'T GET PRICE

BUFFALO—(U.P.)—Frankie Pytlak, Cleveland Indians' catcher, plans to "relax and have some fun" this summer if Club President Alva Bradley refuses to meet his price.

Pytlak refused to accept a contract for $8,000, a $3,500 cut from his last year's salary, and Bradley was reported to have decided to "go through the season without Pytlak."

YOUNG CORBETT WINS

SAN FRANCISCO — Young Corbett, 163, Fresno, Calif., outpointed Harry Cahill, 163, San Francisco (10).

EXPECT 150,000 TO SEE OPENING GAMES TODAY

to use Monte Pearson if Ruffing was unable to play today and Connie Mack countered with Lefty Chubby Dean.

At Cincinnati the Reds were ready to start the defense of their National league title in a game with the Chicago Cubs that was sure of a capacity crowd of approximately 35,000. Two of the finest hurlers in the senior circuit, Paul Derringer of the Reds and Bill Lee of the Cubs, were the mound choices.

Aside from these two attractions the annual test of President Roosevelt's pitching prowess in the Boston Red Sox's appearance at the nation's capital was the day's best sideshow. When the Senators' No. 1 fan got through throwing, Dutch Leonard was scheduled to take over for a duel with Lefty Grove.

The biggest turnout of the afternoon was expected in Detroit, where Tiger officials prepared to handle 40,000 persons. Manager Del Baker of the Bengals planned to pitch big Buck Newsom against Vernon Kennedy of the St. Louis Browns.

The other American league tussle was to serve as young Bob Feller's springboard to a big year. The Chicago White Sox relied on Ed Smith, a southpaw.

St. Louis Manager Ray Blades had so many troubles he got little joy at prospects of 18,000 to 20,000 attendance.

Stu Martin was hurt and out of the lineup. Curt Davis or Lon Warneke was to pitch with Bob Klinger working for Pittsburgh.

Brooklyn sent Whit Wyatt against Bill Posedel in Boston and the Giants offered Carl Hubbell as the foil for the Phillies, who picked on Kirby Higbe.

AIRCRAFT AND STEEL ISSUES EDGE FORWARD

Leaders in Other Groups Are Unable to Make Much Progress in Market.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Selected aircrafts and steels edged forward in today's stock market but leaders in some other groups were unable to make much progress.

On the upside at the start—several subsequently slipped—were Curtiss-Wright, Lockheed, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, International Paper, Chrysler and Dow Chemical.

Bonds were mixed. Commodities pointed higher. "Free" sterling dipped in terms of the dollar. Markets were up in Paris and London and down at Amsterdam.

Market followers noted the figures of reporting Federal Reserve member banks for the week ended April 10, disclosing a drop of $21,000,000 in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans after seven consecutive weekly increases.

Those interested in the steels found some comfort in trade summaries indicating consumption of the metal has been in excess of production for the past two months.

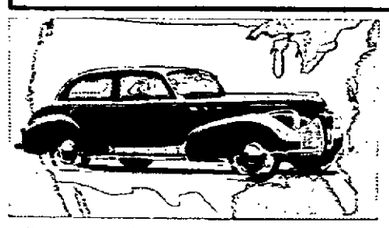
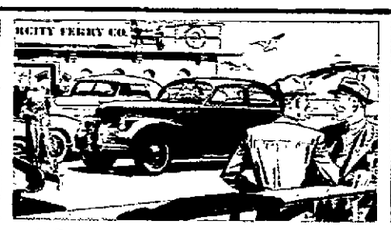
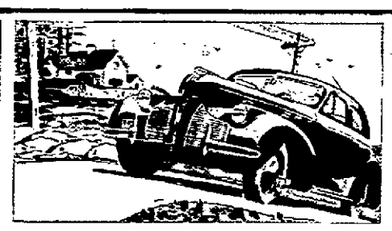
"500 MILES TODAY AND I FEEL FIT AS A FIDDLE!"



Pontiac owners frequently mention this car's superiority for long distance travel. They're the same miles but they seem shorter, and they're more delightful in a Pontiac.



As Pontiac owners compare notes with other drivers on their trips, they also discover that few others can match Pontiac's gasoline and oil economy (18 to 24 miles per gallon).



Up in the mountains, Pontiac's smooth, efficient power-packed engine really thrills you by the way it "goes to town." And Pontiac's handling ease stops driving fatigue before it starts!

And whether you go across town or 500 miles a day, it's a shorter trip in a Pontiac with Pontiac's marvelous "Triple-Cushioned" ride!

U. S. Fears Japan Plans Seizure of Dutch East Indies

MOVE WAITS NAZI THRUST INTO HOLLAND

Officials Cite Nippon's Need of Island Oil Field as Result of War.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Growing fear that Japan plans to push into the oil-rich Dutch East Indies if Germany invades Holland was troubling American officials today.

Such a move not only would drive the axis of the new Japanese empire through the heart of the Philippines, but also would provide the Japanese navy with an abundance of vital oil, vastly increasing its naval power in the event of a possible war with the United States.

Official concern over Japanese policy was based primarily on three developments:

1. Significant articles in the Tokyo press to the effect that Japan might find it necessary to place the important Dutch islands in "protective custody" if their parent country became subject to Germany.

2. Reports reaching Washington that the Japanese foreign office had summoned the Dutch minister in Tokyo for a special conference.

3. A statement by Japanese Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita that Japan would be "deeply concerned" over any European developments changing the status of the Dutch East Indies.

Japan, long handicapped as a military and naval power by its dependence upon imported oil, long has looked covetously on the rich East Indian fields. Their total annual production of nearly 8,000,000 tons roughly approximates the estimated annual needs of the Japanese navy. Tin and rubber—vital military supplies—also are found there.

Japan's craving for oil is understood easily. Its own actual production last year was only 2,400,000 barrels. America alone has been selling Japan about 20,000,000 barrels annually. It has been buying also from British and Dutch companies.

War in Europe has cut down the available oil that Britain has for sale, while threat of an embargo by the United States hangs heavily over Japanese heads. Without adequate oil, Japan's highly mechanized army and its oil-burning navy would be helpless.

Japanese occupation of the islands also would impinge directly upon American interests. Standard Oil of New Jersey has developments in Sumatra and Java. Standard of California has a Javanese concession.

In Manchuria American oil companies were "frozen out" when Japan established military and political control. Officials see no reason to believe that Japan would follow a different course in the East Indies.

abandoned Kongsvinger, which had been an army headquarters, last night and that German troops were expected to arrive today, to find a deserted town.

The Norwegians abandoned the town only after violent fighting yesterday, during the course of which railroad communication between Kingsvinger and Sweden had been severed, the agency reported.

The Norwegians had made a stubborn but vain stand on a line one mile west of the town.

Press dispatches from the frontier east of Trondheim reported fighting in progress at the town of Hagra, between Norwegian troops and Germans who went inland on the railroad line between Trondheim and Storlein, on the Swedish side of the border. It was reported that the Norwegians had formed a defense line about five miles east of the town of Hell, near Hagra.

The Germans had not succeeded in breaking down Norwegian resistance in the Trondheim-Hell sector the dispatches said, and Norwegian losses so far had been surprisingly small. Nothing was known of German losses.

Stockholm picked up a broadcast by radio Oslo, now under German control, that Maj. Vidkun Quislin, head of the puppet regime set up by the Germans at Oslo, had been supplanted by Ingolf Elster Christensen, 68. Like Quisling, head of the puppet Norwegian defense minister.

Before the broadcast, reliable German quarters at Stockholm had told the United Press that German authorities had approved certain changes in the "cabinet" in an attempt to reach a "satisfactory agreement" with King Haakon of Norway.

robbery scene at Main street and Library court.

When Jeffries went to police headquarters to identify the trio, police quoted one of them as saying "There's the bird that put the finger on us." He grinned and then said "O. K. Pal."

Chief Bates stated that another one said "This will probably mean three months in the county jail for us."

The robbery of Schmutzler was staged shortly before noon when the Mansfield man was returning to his cafe on North Park street after having been to the Richland Trust and Savings bank for currency with which to cash pay checks.

Schmutzler carried $1,240 in a black leather pouch, which two men took at the point of gun after one had slugged him with a black jack. He carried considerably more in his coat pockets.

All but $20 of the loot was recovered. Police said they had found $650 in Carbeau's car and home, while the other two had led police to a place in an Ellwood City park where the remainder had been buried.

Carbeau is said to have received the lion's share for "spotting" the money. He is married to a niece of Schmutzler's and frequently visited Mansfield and the cafe.

Bates said Carbeau had told him that he was ashamed of taking the money because he was "in the family." None of the men, the chief said, have a police record, except that one was a juvenile delinquent.

They were transfered from city to county jail today.

County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott said the April term grand jury will convene next Tuesday to begin investigation of the cases. At least four other cases will be checked at the same time.

GIRL RETURNED

Runaway Apprehended In Canton Following Broadcast.

Located in Canton last night after she ran away from the Bowman street school yesterday, a 13-year-old girl was returned home today by county juvenile officers.

The girl's parents reported to Sheriff E. P. Long last night that she failed to return from school.

A radio broadcast of her description brought a report from Canton police that they had found her wandering in the city.

HONOR MUST DRESS BATHERS

Parks Director Lets It Up to Girls About Beach Costumes.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Honor will decide the degree of undress at Cleveland beaches this summer.

For the first time in many years, there will be no fixed rules for beach wear. Park Director Hugo E. Varga said he would rely on "the inherent good taste of the American girl."

"We are going to put them on their honor not to transgress the bounds of good taste. Besides, we have to show these totalitarian states that even in the smallest matter in life we are a perfectly functioning democracy."

HELD IN FRAUD

Woman Charged With $18,700 'Take' From Detroit Contractor.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Mrs. Rose Marie Marcus, 34, sought in connection with the $18,700 swindle of a Detroit contractor a year ago, is held today on a charge of violating the federal mail fraud act.

Postal Inspector Roy Laforge said Mrs. Marcus, mother of two children, obtained money from Contractor George Simone on the pretext she could cure Simone's six-year-old son of his illness if she held the money 13 days. The inspector said Mrs. Marcus later asked Simone by letter to arrange credit for her at a Detroit store. Her husband, Thomas, 34, was detained for questioning.

GET EXTENSION ON WATER BILLS

West Side Consumers Have Rest Of Week To Pay.

West side city water consumers who failed to get in under the deadline yesterday for paying their bills, will be given the remainder of the week to pay, according to C. M. Crafton, service-safety director.

The time limit to pay without penalty has been extended to Saturday noon. Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the city water department, said about 80 per cent of the bills have been paid, bringing in $41,000 of the $52,000 covered by statements sent out.

Administration Agrees to Ask 50 Millions More for Army.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Administration leaders agreed tentatively today to ask the senate to add about $50,000,000 to the house-approved $785,000,000 army appropriation bill. They said the spread of warfare abroad has made the extra funds essential.

The increases sought will include appropriation of $4,000,000 for an immediate start on a new air base at Anchorage, Alaska.

LONG JOB ENDS

WELLINGTON —(AP)— The requested resignation of A. W. Shields, 47, school superintendent in this southern Lorain county community for the last 16 years, is in the hands of the board of education today.

J. H. Page, president said the four-member board asked the resignation "because we felt he had been in office long enough." The board will accept it at a May 6 meeting, he added.

CITY IN GOOD SPOT TO WIN SAFETY AWARD

No Fatalities So Far This Year Gives Mansfield Chance for Honors.

Without a traffic death so far this year, Mansfield stands a good chance for a high rating in the state-wide traffic safety contest sponsored by the state highway department.

Under a scoring system announced today by the highway department, the reduction of deaths from last year counts 50 points in the contest. The city had eight traffic deaths last year.

The maximum score of 100 points is distributed on this basis:

1. Death record, reduction this year from 1939 total 50 points.

2. Accident reporting, record-keeping and maps, five points.

3. Traffic engineering, including collision diagrams, speed and view obstruction surveys, pedestrian protection and signs and signals, 10 points.

4. Traffic law enforcement, including accident investigation and traffic counts, 15 points.

5. Child safety—school course in safety and in driving, safety patrols, junior safety councils—10 points.

6. Public education — safety council or similar group, newspaper cooperation, educational campaigns, digest of traffic ordinances —10 points.

Liberty park was offered to the scouts for their rally at a meeting of the park board last night. Philip Smith Mansfield district commissioner, and Dent represented the area at the meeting. Gordon Watson, president, presided.

in the city, covering the entire $2,193,300 in school protection.

If both Mayor Locke and Kyle are ineligible to handle school insurance, the increase granted to Kyle will be divided equally between the three mutual companies in Mansfield, the Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company, the Mansfield Mutual Fire Insurance company, and the Richland Mutual Insurance company, the board ruled.

The agency with which Mayor Locke is affiliated already holds $33,630 in insurance contracts with the schools while Kyle previously sold the board of education $12,520 in insurance.

Mayor Locke said he understood he would not be permitted under the state law to sell more school insurance and asked to be excluded from the new schedule for schools which includes the additional coverage on the new buildings.

He added that the state law permitted his firm to retain the business already obtained from the schools because the premiums were paid before he became mayor.

The board last night authorized Clerk John H. Eisaman to pay off half of a $50,000 school operating note held by the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank. The money was borrowed in January when operating funds ran low.

Eisaman said the schools had been advanced $90,000 in tax receipts from the county. The amount includes $65,000 for the general fund and $25,000 for bond retirement.

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to "cure" it afterward—you can avoid having it.

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.

Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

New Naval Battle In Skagerrak Reported

Allies and Nazis Both Report Ground Gains In Norway; Stavanger Air Base In Flames, Says London.

not landed at any important Norwegian coastal cities. But it seemed they were preparing their public for news of the capture of Narvick. The general tone of the Berlin communique made it clear that some setbacks must be expected. The Nazis claimed a British cruiser had been bombed and sunk by Nazi planes, and that a huge British Sunderland flying boat had been shot down.

But the British countered these claims with announcement that the Stavanger (Norway) airport had been turned into a roaring furnace by British bombing planes and rendered useless for big Nazi bombers. It was from this airport that Nazi raids on British naval bases were expected to be launched.

Neutral nations persisted in their efforts to avoid being dragged into the conflict. Tension had eased somewhat in the low countries of Belgium and Holland but the Balkans still felt belligerent pressure.

There were conflicting opinions regarding Rumania's newest move of prohibiting export of wheat, oil and other war essentials. Some saw in it a move to appease Germany, while others insisted Germany would suffer most.

But the Balkan situation marked time while both Allies and Nazis centered their attentions in Scandinavia, where the Norwegians—whom the Allies hope will hold the Nazis until adequate help can arrive—were said to have been seized with a "horrible psychosis" of fear. Eye-witnesses reported a complete rout of Norwegian troops in some areas.

A new puppet government was established in Oslo, headed by Ingolf Christensen.

Other reports told of large batches of Norwegian troops and civilians fleeing in panic across the Swedish border.

In Italy, French "hegemony" in the Mediterranean was subjected to a blistering attack by Virginio Gayda, famous Fascist press spokesman.

Germans Give Norwegian King 'One More Chance.'

BULLETIN

NEW YORK — (AP) — A Berlin broadcast picked up by NBC said today that according to reports reaching the German capital King Haakon of Norway and his government had fled across the border into Sweden.

BERLIN — (AP) — Authorized German sources intimated today that King Haakon VII of Norway whom they described as the "captive" of his advisers, has one more chance to save his throne—by recognizing the interim government established at Oslo with Berlin's approval.

This government, it was said, derived its authority from the president of the Norwegian supreme court, who set up the new regime through powers regarded as devolving upon him under the Norwegian constitution when the regular government is unable to function.

Such a condition, authorized sources said, now exists in Norway.

The German high command reported further strengthening of the Nazi position in Norway and denied that British troops had gained a foothold in German-occupied areas.

The communique said that "strong" British naval forces, accompanied by troop transports, had been observed yesterday off Narvik and Harsted, 35 miles to the north, but said there had been no attempts at a landing there.

Two British planes were reported shot down in raids on Narvik and Stavanger, and "pacification" of southern Norway was said to be "proceeding on schedule."

North of Kristiansand, on the southwest coast, 2,150 officers and men of the third Norwegian division were said to have surrendered after a "short attack" by Nazi troops.

Coastal defenses at Stavenger, Trondheim and Bergen—all in German hands—were augmented, the high command said. DNB official news agency reported blowing up of a Norwegian broadcasting station at Notodden.

Asked why losses suffered in the naval battle at Narvik had not been announced, spokesmen said that military reasons made it impossible to give out full information.

They added, however, that any sacrifices which had been made were fully worthwhile.

"We don't need any ships any more," one commentator observed enthusiastically, "but we'll soon show the world what we have in the way of a navy."

German sources emphatically denied that the German air force had been ordered to attack King Haakon personally and the Norwegian civilian population, as stated by the British foreign office and by the king in a purported broadcast.

Norwegians Tell of Recapture of Narvik.

BULLETIN

STOCKHOLM —(INS)— While the war in Norway moved ever closer to Sweden's borders, Norwegian troops evacuated the border town of Kongsvinger this afternoon. Up to 1 p. m. (7 a. m. EST), however, no German troops had entered Kongsvinger.

STOCKHOLM — (AP) — British and Norwegian troops were reported in joint possession of Norway's iron ore port of Narvik today after driving its German defenders back into the hills, where they were said to be occupying a precarious position.

Recapture of the important Arctic shipping center was announced by Norwegian military headquarters, which added that British soldiers and marines, equipped with light artillery, had landed at several other points on Norway's west coast.

(In Berlin, official quarters conceded the possibility that the British might have effected landings in Norway, but denied that any points occupied by Nazi troops had fallen into Allied hands.)

The Norwegian communique gave no details of the action around Narvik, but unofficial sources said that German forces which had held the town since last Tuesday had retreated along the railway leading to the Swedish border, about 20 miles away at that point.

The same sources said that Norwegian troops were maneuvering to surround the Germans.

There were unconfirmed reports that some of the Germans had crossed the frontier and been interned by Swedish authorities.

The landing of the British forces at Narvik was said to have been accomplished under the British naval guns which previously were reported to have destroyed all German naval vessels in the vicinity.

(Official British sources announced yesterday that troops had been landed in Norway, but they gave no hint of where the landings occurred and mentioned no action around Narvik.)

The Norwegian high command's announcement of the recapture of Narvik was accompanied by a government broadcast expressing confidence that with the aid of Britain and France "We will win back Norway for the Norwegian people."

The Norwegian troops were warned that the German troops are "numerous and well armed," and were cautioned against undertaking "any rash actions."

Third of Nazi Navy Sunk, Says Reynaud.

PARIS — (AP) — Premier Paul Reynaud told the French senate today that Germany has lost almost one-third of her navy in the past week of fighting in Scandinavian waters.

Specific figures, the premier declared, are, officially, 30 per cent of the Nazi navy, including 20 per cent of Germany's cruisers and 25 per cent of her destroyers.

Reynaud placed the Nazi sea losses at 78,000 tons during the past week when, he said, the Allied navies had lost "not a single pound." (He evidently referred to British and French merchant shipping.)

The senators stood and cheered when Reynaud referred to President Roosevelt's Pan-American speech yesterday.

"No one asks who Roosevelt meant when he said he condemned force," the premier said.

He mentioned Roosevelt by name and his statement brought prolonged applause from all benches.

RAIN, COOLER

Old Sol Smiles Today But Watch Out Tomorrow.

The first half of a weather forecast of warm spring weather followed by more cold, was carried out today when Old Sol smiled on the world and sent temperatures up to 52 this noon.

Considering the behavior of the weather ever since spring came romping in like a lion in sheep's clothing, citizens are warned not to trust the weather man's forecast today. Keep a fur coat handy, at least.

The official temperature in this area went to 58 yesterday but dropped to 39 last night, making the average just normal.

There was a light rainfall last night and this morning, but occasional showers are forecast for tonight and Wednesday, with slightly cooler temperatures.

be able to rush to Egypt at a moment's notice. Italian Libya adjoins Egypt.

According to unimpeachable sources, the Australians originally were intended to be stationed in Egypt, but owing to the Egyptians' desire not to have too many British troops maintained on their territory, the Australians were dispatched at the last minute to Palestine.

Virtually all the equipment I saw in Syria and Palestine, as well as in Egypt, including balloon tire transports and water supply trucks, was constructed for desert use, giving the impression that the prospective terrain was unlikely to be Turkey or Russia.

Newspapers in Palestine, Syria, and Egypt, censored for military secrets, are permitted to talk freely of possible attacks from Russia, but no speculation is permitted regarding Italy.

Rumania Dooms Nazi Hopes for Wheat Supply.

BUCHAREST—(AP)—Germany's chances of filling her granaries with Rumanian wheat appeared doomed today by a government decree banning wheat exports for an indefinite period, to avert a domestic shortage.

The Rumanian economic council, which announced the decree last night, said that the severe winter followed by spring floods, had threatened to cut the wheat harvest below the amount needed for home consumption.

The reich had expected to obtain a major portion of the Rumanian wheat surplus, normally a million tons.

Announcement also was made that Rumania's military and transport requirements for oil, wood and coal would be given precedence over deliveries abroad but officials said they did not anticipate that this decision would cause any serious interruption in the flow of petroleum to the reich.

The new economic measures came on the heels of government action strengthening Danube police patrols to protect river shipping against "sabotage." The announcement indicated that Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Hungary would co-operate in the protective measures.

Pre-School Clinic To Be Held May 20 For First Graders

A pre-school clinic for children who will start to school in Mansfield next September will be conducted May 20 by the Mansfield health department, Supt. W. L. Miller of Mansfield schools told the board of education last night.

At the same time prospective pupils will be given a reading-readiness test to aid in determining the ability of each pupil at the opening of school Supt Miller said. The tests were used for the first time last year.

"Through the reading tests we will be able to classify the children for instructional purposes at the beginning of school, without having to use the first few weeks in experimentation to find out what the range of ability is," he explained.

The clinic will provide free physical examinations for children and give parents time to have the child's physical defects treated or corrected before school opens.

Mrs. J. L. Stevens, representing the Mansfield Dental Clinic association, told the board of the clinic's work in providing free dental work for needy school children.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 16, 1940

Presently the weather will be so pleasant that it'll scarcely be worth mentioning.

It is said that 95% of all the bath tubs in the world are used in the United States—with indications that a few more are still needed.

Apparently annoyed about something, Georgie Jessel is quoted as saying that he "won't look at another newspaper for 15 years"—but his new wife should soon be old enough to read to him.

Peace Through Preparedness

THE EXTENT to which the United States, and other nations of this hemisphere, must go in preparedness for defense is apparently the only point at issue in the present discussion as to strengthening the national military establishment.

While Europe's war may still seem rather remote to some people, Germany's recent invasion of the Scandinavian countries tends to give it a more serious aspect, as does also the attitude of Stalin and Mussolini in relation to Hitler's program of aggression against small neutral nations.

The more determined course of the Allies in attempting to beat back the invaders of Norway strengthens the view of many observers that a crucial stage of the war is being reached and that the outcome in Scandinavia will be a determining factor in the whole conflict.

With Canada aligned on the side of Great Britain, it can be readily understood that defeat of the Allies would immediately involve North America in the territorial controversy that would follow and that, like it or not, the northern boundary of the United States could not thereafter be safely regarded with the feeling of security which has long existed.

As was said yesterday by President Roosevelt, in connection with observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the Pan American Union, the way to assurance of peace for the American republics is "only if we are prepared to meet force with force, if the challenge is ever made."

This country is now at peace, and there is strong desire to keep it so, but it has been shown in Europe, and also in China, that under present conditions, continuance of peace cannot be assured except through constant readiness for defensive war.

Looking Beyond the Gasoline Era

READERS of the Nebbs comic strip have been amused, during the present episode, by the idea of Rudy Nebb and his pilot making a round-the-world trip in a plane fueled by "power pills" dropped into water.

The idea is as "preposterous" as were those of Jules Verne, back seventy years ago when he wrote "Around the World In Eighty Days" and "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea"—but the French romancer was merely anticipating startling advances in the fields of aerial and submarine navigation.

The world has since been circled in less than a third of the time required by Verne's greatest stretch of imagination, and undersea craft have attained efficiency of which Jules never dreamed.

When it is considered that water is no more than a natural uniting of two elements, hydrogen and oxygen, with two atoms of hydrogen to one of oxygen, and that alone, or in some other combinations, hydrogen is a highly explosive gas, it imposes no great burden on the imagination to anticipate a time when, either by accident or design, chemists will discover a formula by which water can be transformed into a combustible engine fuel adaptable to motor transportation.

Human ingenuity has been quick to respond with efficient substitutes when needs demand, and there is probably no reason to worry over the forecasts of experts that known oil reserves in the United States will be exhausted within ten or twelve years. A similar prediction was made as much as twenty years ago.

Speedy Work In Holdup Case

QUICK work in apprehending the three fellows charged with a street holdup in Mansfield last Friday, with recovery of practically all the money stolen, is justly credited —in large part—to the clear thinking of William M. Jeffries, shoe store manager, who noted the license numbers of the get-away car.

In the excitement associated with such an incident it is more common for onlookers to "lose their head" for a moment, and fail to notice such details as make of car, license numbers, or appearance of persons involved.

Search for the suspects in this case was much simplified by immediate information as to the license numbers. It was also indicated that the job was done by amateurs and search was thus concentrated in one direction.

The promptness with which this case is being handled may well serve as a warning to others contemplating offenses against the law that the chances are all against "getting away with it."

Things Children Worry About

PSYCHOLOGISTS have identified at least fifty anxieties suffered by children at the age of ten years. If it is shocking to find that supposedly carefree childhood is so troubled, it is also reassuring to learn that its worries are fairly normal.

Children worry about school affairs—tests, report cards, tardiness. They worry about home problems—doing wrong, being punished, being blamed for something they didn't do, saying the wrong thing. They are concerned lest their parents work too hard or get sick or go away.

When such worries loom too large in a child's thoughts they are harmful. Mostly, however, in normal children and normal homes, they are passing matters, balanced by happy events and obvious security.

Campaign Suggestion

ABOUT this national campaign, which promises to be so exasperatingly slow to get started, one of the best comments yet made is this one by Hugh Johnson:

"Generalities and criticism are too small to weapons. But specific proposal and constructive suggestions are absolutely necessary this year. You can't beat something with nothing."

This is no time for electing and passyfooting.

The surest thing is that candidates who want the nomination and nominees who want to be elected will have to make their calling and election sure" by facing issues, stating facts and drawing clear-cut diagrams of their plans.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—For several years now this department has been watching an adolescent if heroic struggle going on in the newspaper world—the Hollywood columns of Ed Sullivan and Sidney Skolsky trying to write Broadway's obituary. Their approach has been to scoff at New York, to plead that all the interesting people now live in Hollywood, and that Broadway is only a place where a man named Ziegfeld used to put on leg shows.

Mr. Sullivan is a part-time vaudeville hoofer who used to write a Broadway column, and Mr. Skolsky is the author and for all I know the inventor of the "tintype" style of column that digs energetically into a subject's antecedents and then tells you whether Lupe Velez has on pants. The lone point of similarity between the two is that recurrently, like vagrant grave-diggers from Hamlet, they bob up with news that Broadway is embalmed and that only Hollywood has escaped the cooling board.

ONLY the other day Mr. Sullivan, who is currently heelbeating through the sticks with an act, paused to note: "Once upon a time, and that not so many years ago, if you passed through the country, the youngsters in the various towns asked you about Florenz Ziegfeld, and Charlie Dillingham or George White . . . The big idea then was that the country seemed to have its eye focused on the lights that jittered electrically along Broadway. . . . To date, we have signed literally thousands of autographs and we have yet to meet a single person who wanted to know anything about Broadway. . . . All of them, young and old, have apparently transferred their interest to Hollywood. . . . This is a trend that should be noted."

To me this is an incredible thing. Knowing Mr. Sullivan is from Hollywood, it doesn't seem possible that the people haven't plagued him with questions about Broadway. When I interview diplomats from Paris I always ask them about Shanghai. And when Col. Batista came over from Cuba recently the first thing the ship news reporters yelled was "Tell us about Seattle, Uncle." If we had inquired only after Havana the Colonel would have concluded, and rightly, too, that Seattle was dying and that only Young Dr. Kildare could save it.

WHILE we are about this we may as well call the undertakers and tell them to make ready for a newcomer. Washington, D. C., is dead, too. In the old days when you traveled through the country, the kids used to ask you about Grover Cleveland, and Warren G. Harding, and Woodrow Wilson. But Grover is dead now, and so are Warren and Woodrow, and there hasn't been a spark of life to the place since Frank Capra himself took Mr. Smith to Washington some months ago. This is another trend that should be noted, and I am sure that such an expert trend-noter as Mr. Sullivan won't mind bringing it up.

Sometimes I take a certain crude pride in the many manifestations of this city's material welfare—St. Patrick's Cathedral, which is emblematic of the spiritual and intellectual wisdom of the ages—Wall street, which merely owns Hollywood and everything in it, including Garbo—the city herself with her valiant towers and the music of her streets. I know, this is nothing as compared with, well, seeing Lana Turner in a sweater, or Garbo pacing Malibu beach in slacks. But what can you expect from a guy who has spent 10 years in the cornfields of Manhattan?

A Love Letter From Elsie.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

(Here is one of those things we suspect we've all wished to say in some friendly moment. We admit it may not be orthodox. But Elsie's like that, as you know if you've followed her at all. There are those who can love two or three—and there are those whose hearts can enclose the need of 130,000,000. So—take it or leave it—you get a love letter.—The Editor.)

My Darling:

I'm thinking of you tonight. I haven't been sleeping very well, and sitting out here on the balcony I'm watching the stars swing through the darkness, and the shadows lighten toward the dawn. And as I watch, I'm thinking of you going up and down the earth with your many faces—on your many jobs—but with always the same heart. And always that same heart longing for the one thing—love.

I've thought of you in your youth and poverty, laughing and larking over your crust and cheese . . . dreaming and battling over your hot young ideas . . . huddling perhaps on some park bench with newspapers under you, as once I too laughed and battled and huddled during homeless nights.

And I'm thinking of you with your face grown older and the fear settling in your eyes . . . and the tears drying in a gray ash on the lips that were once so bonny and red—as my own fears and tears have settled and dried. And my heart goes yearning to your side. Can you feel me? Will you let me?

IT'S A LITTLE lighter now. There's a white star burning like a pale torch over the dark horizon. And I'm feeling how many of you will be watching that same star with weariness and bewilderment, doubt and anger, with aging terror and despair. And suddenly the space between us crumbles, for I'm holding you close, so close. And I'm thanking God for all the mistakes I've made—and the failures I've faced—and the grief I've had to drink to the bitter dregs. For it has brought me this hour—that I can come near to you . . . that I can share all I am—and am not—in this hour before the dawn with the other watchers through the night.

Tears on my face? Of course there are. But they're glad tears—for there's a song singing through. The oldest, the simplest, but the most precious song on earth. Three words only there are to it, but those three words have wrought more miracles than all the wealth and power and fury man ever knew. And they run like this, those words—

I love you!

"But how," perhaps you'll be saying, "can you love me whom you've never seen? Or how can I love you whom I may never know?"

But what has seeing to do with it, my dear, if we've eaten the same bread and drunk the same wine and followed the same hard trail? Love isn't seeing. It lies deeper than that, closer than the touch of hand on flesh. It lies in the eager heart—in the friendly, seeking spirit—in the serving soul.

A bird calls. A tree whispers. Over the hill the dawn comes stepping, down. The night has gone. The thought of you has chased away the shadows. I love you, dear! Write to me, to comfort me against the other nights.

Simple Justice.

An Indiana hitch-hiker, angry because rides were scarce, broke eight empty bottles along the roadway. Picked up by a sheriff, he was escorted back along his route and made to sweep up the whole business with a broom.

That's simple justice. It might be extended. Motorists jump their cars over curbs, snap off young trees, fireplugs, or light poles. But do they pay for them? No. Old John Q. Taxpayer is asked to dig down to repair the damage. After all, it was "just an accident."

It would seem elementary justice that those who damage public property pay for it first. Then if the case is complicated by negligence or carelessness, punishment might follow. To restore what has been destroyed is not punishment. That is only the beginning of justice.—Newark Advocate.

Ohio Anecdotes

President-Journalist.

TALL, handsome, likeable, young Warren G. Harding first went to live in Marion in 1882. The town boasted at the time about 4,000 population.

As a printer's devil on the Caledonia Argus and as manager of a college daily, Harding had acquired some newspaper experience before he was employed in 1883 by the Marion Democratic Mirror, a weekly.

The Democratic viewpoint of the paper irked him in his enthusiasm for James G. Blaine, Republican presidential nominee. He joined Jack Warwick in purchasing for a mere $300 the then struggling Marion Star, a four-page sheet, sold to be sold at auction.

Harding tirelessly dug out and wrote news, and advertising, set type, wrote editorials and managed the job print shop. He bought out Warwick's interest, becoming sole owner of the Star which was destined to rise with the rise of Marion, today a city of 32,000.

Health And Diet

Approves Bowling As Healthy Sport.

—By DR. CLENDENING

Is bowling a healthy sport for women?

I thoroughly believe in bowling as a healthy sport, both for men and women. As a form of exercise it has good psychological features. Interest in the game makes people forget they are taking exercise and they are, therefore, not so likely to give up easily, which they would do with bedroom exercises or walking, both of which get somewhat monotonous.

It is splendid exercise for the back, the arms, th thighs and the forelegs, and it cultivates co-ordination of the muscles with the eyes and the sense of equilibrium.

It is good for a problem child of any age because it promotes companionship and good sportsmanship. It should appeal to women because it is a good way to streamline the body, and it stretches many muscles which otherwise would not be used.

Curiously enough, it reduces fat people and increases the weight of thin people. Neck, chest, back and thigh muscles that are becoming stringy and unbecoming fill out into rounded contours. It improves carriage and complexion.

That women themselves are finding it valuable is shown by the fact that there are 500 women bowling teams in the country, and that nearly one-fifth of all bowlers are women. I am told that there are over 76,000 women bowlers in the United States.

What diets are recommended for the skin?

Nature's remedies are probably the best skin tonics. Sunshine, fresh air, water and cleanliness are included in these. For complexion and health, the skin needs sulphur, iron, vitamin A and probably a newly discovered vitamin which is present in liver.

Vegetables and fruits are substances which contain the natural minerals and vitamins that are skin tonics. Onions may be said to be good skin foods; the onion is rich in sulphur and if eaten raw probably is more beneficial than when cooked.

Among other foods that are good sources of sulphur are sprouts, cabbage, beet root, radishes, endive, cauliflower, red cabbage. Foods which contain iron are watercress, spinach, prunes, raisins, apricots, parsley, olives, dandelion leaves and nearly all dark green vegetables. Vitamin A is supplied by carrots, which contain carotene, the basic substance from which vitamin A is manufactured. Do not peel the carrots because the surface, as with most vegetables, contains larger amounts of vitamins than the pulp.

Almonds and brazil nuts contain oils which are said to be skin tonics.

Plenty of water is also advisable.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Boiled down to the most brutal fundamentals, the Norwegian war amounts to this: If the British lose it, they also lose the World war.

This may seem like harsh and hasty deduction, but it is based upon the fact that all the other nations of Europe, particularly Italy, are watching the outcome of this battle to see on which side they will jump.

If the Germans succeed in holding Norway, every small nation in southeast Europe will figure that the might of the British Empire is broken, that the time has come to cuddle up to its successor.

But more important, you can write it down as certain that unless Britain wins in Norway, Italy will come into this war within approximately one month.

Almost every dispatch which the state department lays upon the White House desk indicates that Mussolini is getting ready for this plunge.

Real fact is that the Italian people are by no means in love with Hitler. Nor are they in love with the Allies—though they probably like Hitler less.

However, Mussolini never was a man to worry about the Italian people, and regardless of popular sentiment, he can take Italy into the war any time he wants to.

U. S. observers are confident that he will do so, probably jumping first into North Africa the minute he sees that Hitler is victorious in Scandinavia.

Note—What many people do not realize is gauging this war is that Italy and Russia were on the side of the Allies in the last war, but even so it took four years plus the very powerful help of the United States before Germany surrendered—with her troops still on French soil. In this war, the alignment is far different, which is why Italy can tip the balance.

Weird Reorganization.

JUST two weeks ago the air lines of the United States celebrated their first year without a single fatality. It was a national landmark in transportation, and thousands of congratulatory messages poured in upon the Civil Aeronautics authority, which had contributed so materially to this record. Among those messages was one from President Roosevelt personally to able CAA Chairman Robert Hinckley.

Hinckley and his four associates had taken hold of a broken-down, politics-ridden agency which was so scandal-soaked that congress wrenched it out of the department of commerce and forced the administration to accept it as an independent commission. And in two short years the CAA commissioners made it one of the model agencies of the New Deal.

But now, just two weeks after the brilliant no-fatality air record, the Civil Aeronautics Authority finds itself right back where it started. It has been dumped into the lap of the commerce department, with chairman Hinckley and his capable colleagues shorn of their power.

All this was done through the latest government reorganization messages to congress.

And believe it or not, but Harry Hopkins, boss of the commerce department, did not know fifteen minutes in advance that he was to take back the aeronautics authority. Furthermore, there seems to be some doubt whether the president himself knew that the CAA was being transferred to the commerce department.

For when outraged friends of Chairman Hinckley went to the White House to find out what the transfer was about, Roosevelt was just as blank as they.

"Why, I thought we were giving Bob (Hinckley) control of the whole CAA," he said.

Who Rules Reorganization.

ALL of this brings up the very important question of who is writing the government reorganization orders with which the president has been peppering congress. Chief masterminds are:

Louis Brownlow, an affable ex-newspaperman, formerly city manager of Petersburg, Va., and Knoxville, Tenn., who now operates the public administration clearing house in Chicago. It was Brownlow who wrote the president's reorganization bill.

William H. McReynolds, who for 34 years has been wound up in government red tape in the post office, the now defunct Bureau of Efficiency, the Budget Bureau, and the Farm Credit Administration; and who finally was sold to Roosevelt by his pal Henry Morgenthau. McReynolds now is a member of the enlarged White House secretariat.

Both men, it is interesting to note, are close friends of Clinton M. Hester, CAA administrator and another government careerist. During his career, Hester became familiar with red tape all the way from the interior department to the treasury, including the shipping board, alien property custodian, and justice department, where he ran into a storm with the late Mrs. Homer Cummings.

Hester, as administrator of the CAA, was kept under rein by Chairman Hinckley. But suddenly, friends Brownlow and McReynolds inserted in their first reorganization of the CAA a deft provision whereby most of Hinckley's powers suddenly were transferred to Hester. They put this plan under the president's nose, he signed it, and overnight Hester became the czar of the CAA.

But not for long. Perhaps worried over the resultant storm plus knowledge that Chairman Hinckly would resign, they wrote a new reorganization message for the White House. This time they transferred Civil Aeronautics back to the commerce department and old-fashioned politics.

Thus in two weeks and for no apparent reason came two reorganizations of an agency which had just chalked up one of the most notable records of the New Deal. And all of this has been done by a reform measure supposed to streamline government.

Merry-Go-Round.

CHESTER THOMPSON, genial new head of the government-owned Inland Waterways Corporation, doesn't believe in remote control. He has moved his agency's headquarters from its flossy offices in Washington to the river docks at St. Louis. Thompson also has lopped off $75,000 in top salaries . . . Representative Lawrence Connery, scrappy Massachusetts New Dealer, is threatening an investigation of the labor department for its admittance of a large number of Czech shoe workers for the new Bata plant in Maryland . . . National Youth Administrator Aubrey Williams is one New Dealer who has Republican defenders. When he was criticized by several Democratic congressmen, a number of GOP members leaped to their feet and lauded him plus his NYA.

April Morning

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IN THE NIGHT deep rolling thunder shook the house and echoed and re-echoed down the valley. Bright zigzag streaks of lightning lit the room at intervals and then we heard the warm spring rain fall in a pattering deluge upon the roof, the trees, and the grass outside the screen window.

With the first streaks of dawn the disappearing clouds showed blue and gold and crimson above the eastern timbered hill. Awakening birds sang welcome to the tinted morning sky—the song-sparrow from the hedge, the whistling cardinal from his familiar tree, the plaintive quail from the brushy border of the meadow, a noisy group of blackbirds upon a maple near the house.

I went out upon the porch. The atmosphere was newly washed, fresh, transparent. I felt the freshness of the clean air deep in my lungs and the uplift of spirit which such a wonderful morning brings. The grass had grown much greener during the night. Long tender blades were showing about the barer spots of lawn. The meadow glistened in its dewy garment. The spring-fed stream was brimming with swirling eddying water. Little rain water pools lay in the hollows of the grass. I heard the soaking, sucking sound of moisture in the earth at every step.

Castings of angleworms seemed to cover half the surface of the ground. The slimy paths of night crawlers told their mating story. A robin cocked his head sharply to the right, gave an eager peck and stretched out a long, protesting worm. When he pulled too hard the portion in the burrow severed. The unsuspecting robin turned a somersault then looked about as though he wished no one had seen him.

Cool moistened breath comes gently down from our wooded slope. I can sniff the fragrance of leafy mold and bursting buds—the elusive surge of lifeblood into the hedges and forest trees. What a paradise to be upon the land in spring—how good life is after rain on an April morning!

$74,942 IN UCC CHECKS PAID IN 3-COUNTY AREA

First Quarter Payments Up 200 Per Cent, Mansfield Branch Reports.

Compensation benefits to jobless workers in the Mansfield area during the first quarter of 1940 increased approximately 200 per cent over payments made in the first three months of last year, C W. Handley, manager of the Mansfield district office of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported today.

A total of $74 942 went to unemployed workers in Richland Ashland and Morrow counties in the first quarter of this year, Handley said, as compared with a total of $25.948 paid to unemployed in the district during the corresponding period in 1939

Part of the increase was attributed to the addition of Ashland county to the Mansfield district office last December which hiked benefit payments through the local center.

Handley said the average weekly benefit check for total unemployment during the three-month period this year was $9 91 as against a first quarter 1939 average total unemployment check of $9 04

Average weekly payments for partial unemployment totaled $6 02 this year as compared with $5 88 during the first quarter in 1939

Initial claims received so far this year at the Mansfield district office from the three counties totaled 1.532, an increase of 76 over the number filed during the first three months of last year, although the compensation plan was initiated in January, 1939

Since Jan 1, Handley's records show that jobs were found for 511 workers in the district During the first three months of 1939, a total of 214 placements were made

Major portion of the persons placed in employment so far this year have been hired by private industry, Handley said while most of the jobless workers last year went into public positions

KEEP WATCH FOR CROWN ROT

Delphinium lovers know that crown rot means disaster when it attacks the plants, therefore they keep on the watch for it Crown rot is a serious fungus disease that lives over in the soil from year to year unless it is eradicated from the garden.

When the lower leaves on a delphinium plant turns yellow and the plant wilts down one should suspect crown rot This rot will be found on the crown and roots of the plant and in the surrounding soil The seed-like fungus shown in the Garden-Graph, is white tan or reddish brown in color

Remove the diseased plant at once and burn it Next pour a bichloride of mercury solution (2 tablets to a quart of water) on the soil from which the diseased plant was taken Do not set new plants in the same location until the treatment has had time to destroy all traces of the disease in the soil

To protect surrounding plants from the disease, sprinkle the ground with naphthalene flakes, and then work them into the soil

16 SCIENTISTS

Reveal Great Discovery About

CONSTIPATION

Tests at World-Famous Hospital Show How To Help Nature Produce Her Own Gentle, Complete "Daily" Bowel Action!

NEW YORK: Constipation sufferers rejoice! For now violent cathartics and laxatives and harsh "roughage" products, many of which are habit forming and are often irritating to bowel lining—can be avoided.

You can now actually help Nature produce her own gentle, complete "daily" bowel movements—thanks to the patient study of 16 Scientists.

You see if waste matter in the colon isn't kept moist it becomes hard, dry, caked and results in constipation. These scientists discovered that a "little daily dose" of Kruschen actually keeps this waste matter moist, soft and easy to expel. Also acts as a mild antacid and helps digestion.

There is no nausea, no griping, no violence with Kruschen. Hospital tests reported: Kruschen can be taken for years without having to increase the dose." Inconspicuous! Only a trifle for a jar that lasts weeks. Over 245,000,000 jars of Kruschen have been sold throughout the world. Kruschen must do the world!

Juniors Present Program For Mansfield Music Study Club

MEMBERS of the junior federated music clubs presented the program last night at the John Simpson Junior high school before members of the Mansfield Music Study club, parents and friends. Mrs. K. E. Buhr, president, gave the welcome address, and then Mrs. E. D. Gibson, district junior councilor, took over the meeting.

For the opening number the Little Mozarts, directed by Mrs. John Klinger, presented a streamlined version of one of their regular monthly meetings with Margarethe Jorgensen in charge. Ann Tracy gave the life of Haydn, and Janey Bushnell, state contest winner, played three original compositions. Ruth Swisher played a piano composition, and the entire group sang the junior song.

Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine, councilor, directed the Treble choir in two groups of numbers. Miss Katherine Huber accompanied the choir. George Porterfield introduced Virginia Osbun and David Weimer as representative of the Junior Music Study club. This club is conciled by Miss Dorothy Donn, Miss Anna Lois Dietrichson, and Mrs. Charles Anglin. The Boy Violinists, directed by Mrs. Gibson, played three numbers.

Miss Betty Axtell, president of the Crescendo club, introduced three contest winners to represent her organization. Miss Harriett Johnson, mezzo-soprano, Don McLaughlin, tenor, and Robert Early, baritone, sang.

The next regular meeting of the senior club will be held May 13 at the Women's Club with Mrs. Hazeltine as hostess and Mrs. Gladys Lane in charge of the program on modern German music. The date of the meeting was advanced one week from May 6 on account of the Singers club concert which will be presented on that date.

General Federation To Have 50th Birthday Celebration

WITH Mansfield proudly boasting of a number of clubs that have celebrated their 50th anniversaries, and many more that are 25 years old interest here in the birthday celebration of the General Federation of Women's Clubs runs high. On April 24, 1940 the Federation will be 50 years old, and for the three years of this administration the birthday is being celebrated. The climatic event will be the Triennial Convention in Atlantic City in May, 1941, when a pageant will depict women's progress.

The motto "Unity In Diversity" which was adopted in 1890 when the ratification convention was held is still carried by more than 15,000 clubs in this and 31 foreign countries, and by 2,000,000 women.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs is a group of organized women in every community who can be depended upon to promote all movements looking toward the betterment of life.

In the past years the federation interests have grown to such an extent that there are now committees in charge of health, education, legislation, citizenship, the consumer's problem, fine arts, and many other things.

Mansfield's local federated clubs are all planning special events in celebration of the fifty years of women's development. The affiliated groups are Mansfield Sorosis, Junior Sorosis, Civic club, Round Table club, Tourist club, Conversational club, Victorian club.

Writer Has Advise For Mother

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A couple of weeks ago a correspondent wrote to this column concerning a very real problem, which she has been called upon to decide immediately. As the perplexing question might concern a number of women, I asked my readers for their reaction to the situation in which this mother found herself.

To sum up the case briefly, she was the wife of a man now serving a jail sentence. Though a high school graduate she had not been able to get more remunerative work than rough cleaning, which was barely enough to maintain the children. A childless woman of assured social position and wealth offered to adopt the children, but the separation from their mother would have to be final.

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

(Please forward to the Mother who thinks of giving up her children)

"You have ability, a high school education and one year of college. That's all I had plus a steadfast faith in God. My husband and I have educated three daughters and sent them through college, all of them becoming teachers. Now we have three good sons-in-law and one granddaughter. Every sacrifice paid.

"We lost all our property in the depression. The youngest daughter worked her way through college, won a degree. She had to borrow some money and pay part of her board by doing cleaning in a rooming house, at the same time working at a library job.

"My husband was a semi-invalid. I milked cows, often wading through water a foot deep to get to the barn, and delivered milk morning and evening. Later, my husband was mentally ill and in an institution. I prayed for his recovery, morning and night. Now he is fairly normal, and I have my children to enjoy, at 60 years of age. What would I have had, if I hadn't held on?

"If this rich woman, anxious to adopt the poor woman's children, were really of the right sort, she would give her the money to help her rear the children and leave them with her, rather than try to take them away from her.

"May God bless this sorely tried woman and give her the wisdom and strength to be a real mother—that's worth more to a child than anything else in this world.

(Mrs.) A. E. S."

BUILDS HYBRID SNOW CRUISER

Combines Truck, Passenger Car And Plane In Contraption.

PINE BLUFFS, Wyo.—(AP)—Kenneth Smith, of the south star mail route, has "crossed" a truck with a passenger car, added airplane tires and produced a contraption which conquers the deep snow drifts out his way.

He cut down the chassis of a truck to passenger car size, added a sedan body and placed low-pressure airplane tires 15 inches in diameter and 42 inches high under it.

Drivers of ordinary cars and trucks who have tried to follow Smith's trail say the machine is a real "snowmobile." It will go through drifts where the car with tires of ordinary size sink to the running boards.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

IT TOOK me less than a second to decide my answer to Miss Annie Carman's suggestion.

"I can think of nothing more important than tea at this moment," I said cordially. "Fortunately, while I want to return to the farm very shortly, I am not so pressed for time that I cannot give tea the preference over discussion."

At last, when we had finished, and Maria, summoned by the bell, had removed the tray and shut the door after her, Miss Carman leaned forward in her chair, and said "Now!" with a curious effect of breathlessness. That she was eager to hear what I had to say was almost pathetically patent.

I settled myself comfortably in my chair, and began to speak, slowly, measuredly.

"In order to understand the background of what I am going to ask you," I said, "I must tell you some most carefully guarded secrets. One is that my father is a high secret service official who was instrumental during the recent revolution in Transvania in rescuing Queen Olga of that country and her daughter, Princess Olina. They are now at the farm house in hiding and heavily guarded, but the queen's famous necklace of emeralds has been missing since her rescue."

"Most of the conspirators in the kidnaping of the royal women were killed or captured, but the leader escaped and has gathered a band of men around him as desperate as himself. He is undoubtedly more than a bit insane, for he has communicated with my father, saying that he is in possession of the necklace and will send it to the farm if my father, in exchange, will deliver into his hands my husband's niece, with whom he claims to be desperately in love, and her husband, a former college mate, upon whom he has sworn deadly vengeance."

"This leader is in hiding with his men in a heavily-guarded stronghold on the bay not many miles from the farm," I went on. "Our own house is so strongly guarded while my father perfects his plans for the final capture or destruction of this band that there is no possibility of anyone gaining egress to the house through ordinary channels. Yet, today we accidently discovered two of the band in our attic, with no idea of how they came there."

"When I tell you," I went on slowly, "that the escape or triumph of this gang means much more to the government of our country, and that it is a patriotic duty to foil them, you perhaps may guess why it is that I have come to you to appeal for certain information which you may possess."

"I possess everything you guess that I have, perhaps more than you conjecture. I never thought to reveal it to a living soul. But it is all at your service. Please wait here until I return."

"The Authority on Authorities"

Just as the opening lead is conceded to be the most important single play of any hand, the next most important usually is the first play by the partner of the leader. He got his first news about his partner's hand, aside from the bidding, in the form of the lead. Now he has his first chance to give news about his holding. But, more important still sometimes, he has his first chance to act upon what his partner has told him. If he exerts himself a bit, he may be able to figure out the exact odds in favor of one play or another.

	♠ J 5 3 ♥ A Q 10 4 ♦ 9 4 3 2 ♣ Q 6

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North

Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

West opened his fourth-best spade 6. North ducking. East playing the Q, under the old rule he had heard about "third hand high," and the other one about not "finessing against your partner," and South came in with the A. He played a club to the Q, another to the A, West took his spade K, then knocked out dummy's jack. South thereafter won the two finesses in the red suits and made game, with three tricks in clubs and two in each other suit.

Simple thinking by East could have stopped game. The "Rule of Eleven" was the key. Subtract the size of the led card, 6, from 11, showing there were five higher cards outside of the leader's hand. East saw three, so declarer had two. If declarer had the A and 10 or K and 10, it made no difference what East played. But if he had the A or K and smaller cards than the 10, play of the 9 would limit declarer to one trick in the suit. The only holding against which the Q would be the better play would be small cards headed by the 10, in which event South probably would not have bid No Trumps.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, April 17.

EXCELLENT auguries are found among the lunar as well as mutual configurations of the major planets to justify the fulfillments of the fondest hopes and wishes. This applies not only to business and workaday matters, but also to social, educational, philanthropic and romantic ambitions and aspirations. It is a most auspicious time for pushing to high goals, with promotion, increased fortune, prestige and popularity assured. There may be much celebration or merriment, but beware of hasty changes and unexpected disruptions.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of decidedly expanding, progressive and warming planetary influences. Promotion, increased finances, enhanced personal popularity and prestige, with the hearty support of those in high places, are assured. There may be romantic attachments, gaiety, celebrations and conviviality. But remain in familiar environs; do not change the scene or go in search of audacious adventure, which may suddenly be presented.

A child born on this day may be efficient, versatile, dependable and ambitious. An outstanding and powerful personality should insure it success and high station in life. Its greatest achievements may be made at home.

THEATERS

Picture and Revue.

A company of 30 performers, including "The Great Raymond," magician and juggler, will present a revue at the Madison theater Wednesday and Thursday. Others in the cast are Mrs. Raymond, Ruth and Sylvia, magic makers, Jack, the musical clown, the Nelson Sisters, dancers, Frances and her violin, Sunkist beauties, Litzka, and her harp, and the Stevens Bros., and others. What happens when a backwoods miss meets a number of forward misters from Broadway is the subject of the comedy picture "The Farmer's Daughter," which opens Wednesday.

Thin Man Returns.

Asta, the wire-haired terrier appears with William Powell and Myrna Loy in "Another Thin Man," at the Majestic theater. His value to motion picture writers and directors lies in the fact that his stunts are emotional. Containing the same elements of sentiment, human drama and mysticism that have made Lloyd Douglas' other stories unforgettable, "Disputed Passage" digs into the souls of men in white. Dorothy Lamour, Akim Tamiroff and John Howard have the leads.

Rackets Exposed.

Combining the excitement of tomorrow's headlines with a romantic story of men and women who write those headlines, "Scandal Sheet" opens Wednesday at the Park theater. Otto Kruger, Ona Munson and Edward Norris are in the featured roles. Preston Foster and Ann Dvorak are co-featured in "Cafe Hostess," the sensational expose of the "clip-joint" racket, which is the co-feature. This film depicts the life of the "percentage-girls" of the shady night clubs and the men behind the vicious racket.

"Assassin of Youth."

The daring expose film of marihuana smoking, "Assassin of Youth," which opens Wednesday at the Ritz theater, is a direct result of a crusade started by some of the best magazines condemning the evils of this "reefer" smoking and attempting to bring to light the habit which has been sweeping the country with disastrous effects. The co-feature is "City of Chance," starring Lynn Bari, C. Aubrey Smith, Donald Woods and Amanda Duff.

Dr. June A. W. McCarroll, pioneer physician of Coachella Valley, California, and club woman, invented the white line of safety which stripes the country's highways. Lack of enthusiasm on the part of men officials drove Dr. McCarroll to the women's clubs, who suported her 100 per cent, thus launching the great safety device.

SINGERS CLUB.

OLD STUFF

Blackouts Were Used by Germans Four Hundred Years Ago.

FRANFORT AN MAIN, Germany—(AP)—War blackouts are an old story in Germany—more than 400 years old. An order of the city authorities, dated 1519, was found recently in the city archives. The order directed inhabitants to darken windows in the upper stories of their homes because of the threatening danger of war.

The city fathers said that this step would make it very difficult for an approaching enemy to find the city.

CATFISH TURN HARE HUNTERS

Rabbit Found In Stomach of James River Catfish.

BUCKINGHAM, Va. — James river catfish, with a reputation for truculence and bigness, have quit making news by spitting in fishermen's eyes. They've gone to catching rabbits.

That is the explanation given by Sportsman John Wood for the discovery of a half-grown rabbit in the stomach of a six-and-a-half pound catfish he pulled out of the river.
